

“Chewing on Conflict”: Kyle Dodson shares his experience as Director of Police Transformation

In 2020 we saw significant unrest across the nation in reaction to deaths and injuries caused by police officers. This led to calls for defunding the police in some cities.

Burlington also was impacted by this crisis, with activists calling for a reduction and defunding of the police force, creating significant controversy in the community.

The conflict has complexity partly because of the number of parties involved: those needing police services; the BIPOC community; police officers; those pushing to defund the police; the police union; and others.

At the Mayor’s request, Kyle Dodson has stepped into the role of Director of Police Transformation. Kyle will share his experience working with the various parties in this complex conflict.
